

The work of Uniikup Productions Ltd. (formerly Murriimage Community Video and Film Service) over the past 28 years includes:

- production of video, film and media arts which promote Indigenous society and cultures;
- production of video programs relevant to the information needs of Indigenous community organisations and individuals and for government organisations seeking to produce culturally relevant information;
- production of documentary and drama with and within Indigenous communities;
- production of media arts on various platforms and as interactive installations;
- conducting social justice programs – e.g. video communications access workshops with incarcerated women and men, recording of community events e.g. Deaths in Custody conferences, local and national Aboriginal organisation conferences or meetings, public lectures, civil liberty/human rights events;
- video recording of community events – e.g. NAIDOC, celebrations, ceremonies, sports, concerts, festivals;
- conducting media arts workshops for community groups and in primary and secondary schools and providing training for individuals in the film and television industry;
- recording community and personal histories - video and literature;
- conducting seasonal events that promote an holistic Indigenous culture - refer Events on the site menu;
- preservation of archival community video footage for posterity;
- advice to Government on Indigenous media arts development.